“The Mountain of the Lord” was written soon after the events of 9/11/01, when this USA, and indeed the whole world, was in turmoil over the tragic destruction perpetrated by a terrorist attack. There was fear and confusion, as the nations looked to their own military strength. I wanted them to look to the scriptures and the Lord’s coming Kingdom as their only solution.

The Mountain of the Lord

(optional descant verses 3 and 5)

Words and Music by Carolyn Fiorillo

Come everyone that thirsteth to the waters, To the house of Jacob’s God. Let us go up into his holy mountain, To the mountain of the Lord.

1. He shall judge among the many peoples And shall set them free. He shall make war no more. He shall sing of God forever. The song of Moses and the Lamb we'll tell.

3. Then the desert blossoms as the rose, Springs of water from a thirsty land. They shall see their nations to the core. They shall make you fear a small fear.

5. Entering with gladness and rejoicing The beautiful palace of the King. They shall make you fear a little fear. None shall make you fear a small fear.

6. The Lord's knowledge shall fill all the nations! You must cease greed and gain.

9. Hark O nations! You must cease greed and gain.

11. Speak, ye even a little fear. The song of Moses and the Lamb we'll tell.

14. The Lord's knowledge shall fill all the nations! You must cease greed and gain.
“He shall judge among the nations...they shall beat their swords into plowshares...nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more”

(Isaiah 2:4)
